Day 4 Cruising the Corinth Canal and Delphi (Port: Itea)

We wake this morning at the entrance to one of the world's engineering wonders, the Corinth Canal. This narrow waterway connects the Gulf of Corinth with the Saronic Gulf in the Aegean Sea, cutting through the Isthmus of Corinth and saving vessels a significant 700-kilometre journey around the Peloponnese peninsula. Stretching 6.4 kilometres and only 21 metres wide at its base, the Corinth Canal is one of the narrowest lock-free canals in the world. Its towering limestone walls, reaching heights of up to 78 metres, create a dramatic passage for vessels, which almost touch its sides as they sail its path. The concept of cutting a canal through the isthmus dates to ancient times, with plans proposed by Periander of Corinth in the 7th century BCE. Construction finally began under Roman Emperor Nero, only to halt upon his death. It was not until 1893 the canal was finally completed. Its construction was a monumental effort, involving the excavation of millions of cubic metres of earth and rock, all dug at sea level. It stands as a remarkable achievement in engineering and continues to be a key route for maritime traffic, enhancing Greece's role as a central hub in the Mediterranean. Exiting the canal, we sail the Gulf of Corinth to Itea where our afternoon offers a glimpse into the life of the early Greeks, with a visit to the former city of Delphi. Our local guides tell tales of pilgrimage, sacrifice and early faiths as we take a literal step into the world of ancient Greece. Revered throughout antiquity as a sacred site where pilgrims could glimpse the future, the Oracle of Delphi cast cryptic prophecies for over a millennium. Dubbed the 'navel of the world' for its pivotal position in the Greek realm, Delphi drew pilgrims from all sectors of society, shaping critical decisions, from civic politics to personal destinies. Perched dramatically on the slopes of Mount Parnassus, the Oracle was esteemed as a direct conduit to the divine realm of Apollo – the sun god. Revered for his beauty and creative prowess, Apollo symbolised order and harmony. As a result, Delphi became integral to Greek identity, reflecting its religious, cultural, and political life. It was a unifying site where people from various city-states gathered, fostering a sense of shared Hellenic heritage. Our journey leads us to the very site of the Oracle, alongside the opulent Treasury of the Athenians – a testament to offerings made. We pause at the ancient theatre, host to the prestigious Pythian Games, and the Castalian Spring, where pilgrims purified themselves before seeking counsel. Today, Delphi stands as a UNESCO World Heritage Site, its influence enduring through the annals of literature, history, and art. It remains a profound emblem of ancient wisdom and cultural legacy, cherished by Greece as a bridge to its storied past. Returning to the ship we sail to Greece's classic, the Peloponnese Peninsular.

Day 5 Katakolon (Port: Katakolon)

Today, our 'Your Choice' experiences are truly Olympic in scope, offering you two classic Greek treats. A brief ten-minute walk from our berth, finds a variety of shops and restaurants to explore. Just a short distance away, the popular pebbled Plakes Beach awaits, and the sandy stretch of Agios Andreas Beach is a mere five-minute taxi ride. Steeped in maritime history, the picturesque port town of Katakolon remains the gateway to the ancient site of Olympia, and our port for today. One of the most important sanctuaries in ancient Greece, Olympia was dedicated to Zeus, the king of the gods. Every four years, athletes from across the Greek world gathered here to compete in various sports, honouring Zeus and fostering unity among the city states. The busy port town of Katakolon itself is a hub of activity, with its quaint streets lined with shops and cafes, while the Katakolon Lighthouse and the Museum of Ancient Greek Technology offer insights into the region's rich history.

Option 1 – Morning experience: An Olympic Encounter

Renowned as the birthplace of the ancient Olympic Games, the 8th-century BCE site of Olympia was the Greek world's most revered religious sanctuary, dedicated to Zeus, the king of the gods. The site housed numerous temples, altars, and sporting facilities, with the Temple of Zeus featuring a 40-foot statue of Zeus sitting on an elaborate cedarwood throne adorned with ebony, ivory, gold and precious stones. This statue was one of the Seven Wonders of the Ancient World. Held every four years from 776 BCE to 393 CE, the games at Olympia attracted athletes from all over the Greek world. Over 45,000 spectators cheered on their sporting heroes, who competed in a range of sports such as running, wrestling, boxing, and chariot racing. The games were not only a display of physical prowess, but also a celebration of Greek unity and religious devotion. Victors were awarded olive wreaths and gained immense prestige and honour in their home cities. Today, Olympia continues to influence the modern Olympic Games. Many of the ancient sports, lost throughout the centuries, were revived in 1896 by Pierre de Coubertin's 'Modern Olympics'. The Olympic flame, a symbol of peace and unity, is lit in a ceremony at the ancient site of Olympia before every modern Olympics, and then relayed to the host city. This tradition underscores the connection between the ancient and modern games. A visit to Olympia is a lesson not only in its historical and archaeological importance, but also in its lasting impact on global culture through the ongoing tradition of the Olympic Games. The site fosters a spirit of unity and excellence that resonates nearly 3,000 years after those first games. Our local guide brings the story of Olympia to life with tales of sporting heroes, revered gods, and generations of families who have lived on this land. The museum is a short walk from the site and contains the 4th-century BCE statue of Hermes by Praxiteles, plus several finds from the excavations, including Paeonius' Nike of Victory, who according to Olympic legend, came down from the heavens to hand a palm leaf to every winner.

Option 2 – Half day experience:

Farm and Feast

Nestled among olive trees and vineyards, this 30-acre, family-owned estate lies approximately 45 minutes from the port in the picturesque region of Floka near Ancient Olympia. Embracing traditional farming methods and organic cultivation passed down through generations, the estate exudes a timeless charm. Upon arrival, guests are greeted with a classic shot of ouzo, a beloved Greek spirit celebrated for its distinct anise flavour and potent clarity. Integral to Greek culture, ouzo is often savoured as an aperitif or paired with meze (small dishes). Accompanying the ouzo is a freshly baked local pie, served as our hosts share insights into the estate's non-mechanised olive-harvesting techniques. Delve into a captivating history of olive oil and its revered properties, underscoring the profound connection between Greek cuisine and the land. Enjoy a leisurely stroll around the farm, interacting with the resident animals. Later, we gather in the charming stone farmhouse, now transformed into a cosy dining area. Here, indulge in a feast of traditional flavours sourced from the farm and the local area, complemented by the estate's wine drawn straight from large oak barrels. Our visit culminates in true Greek style with a lively sirtaki dance. Join in the celebration as guests and newfound friends of the estate embrace the joyous spirit of Opa!

Day 6 Kalamata (Port: Kalamata)

Celebrated for its famous olives, Kalamata is the capital of the Messenia region. Having withstood various civilisations, including the Byzantines, Franks, Venetians, and Ottomans, it invites us to explore a slice of the Peloponnese Peninsula. Today it acts as our gateway to a coastline of Medieval castles and a chance to savour the local olives. The renowned black Kalamata olives are a must-try, and visiting a local producer to sample these olives and pick up a bottle of extra virgin olive oil is a must. Many local producers are still small-scale and family-run, offering an authentic experience. Alternatively, you can explore Kalamata's vibrant central market. Its Saturday, with hundreds of vendors and producers setting up stalls to offer a wide range of fruits and vegetables, including Kalamata olives. You'll also find a variety of local delicacies, such as sfela cheese (a semi-hard cheese made from sheep or cow milk), pasteli, honey, lalagia (fried dough), and Poliani apples. This vibrant harbour city is dominated by a rocky outcrop, which, although formerly a Greek Argos, now hosts the Frankish-built 13th-century Castle of Isabeau. The castle offers dramatic panoramic views across the Messenian Gulf. At its base, the Palia Poli, or Old City, provides an eclectic open-air venue for theatre, music, and dance shows. The city's charm lies in its blend of historical allure and contemporary vibe. It continues to thrive as a centre of agriculture, with its famed almond-shaped olives exported worldwide, and locally produced olive oil coveted as a symbol of Greek culinary expertise.

Option 1 – Morning experience: Ancient Messini and Kalamata Olives

Our morning begins with a journey into the ancient past and present as we explore the ruins of Messini, visit the village of Androusa, and discover the essence of the kalamata olive. Nestled below the village of Mavromati, the extensive ruins of Messini sprawl across a hillside, comparable in scope to sites like Delphi and Epidaurus. Founded around the 4th century BCE, Ancient Messini thrived as a prominent city-state for 350 years under Spartan rule before gaining independence. Explore its expansive theatre and formidable city walls, offering an insight to the city's former political, cultural and religious life. Further down the hill, we find a large stadium, surrounded by a forest of restored columns. Invading Romans transformed part of the athletics track into a gladiator arena, complete with VIP seats adorned with lion backs and paw-shaped legs. Nearby, by the rebuilt gate of the immense gymnasium, discover round holes in stone slabs – Roman public toilets ingeniously positioned over a stream.

No visit to Kalamata is complete without a nod to its famed olives. Afterward, immerse yourself in the timeless tradition of olive oil production in Androusa village. Visit a traditional olive mill to observe the meticulous process from olive cultivation to oil extraction, followed by an exclusive tasting session to savour the rich flavours of locally crafted olive oil, celebrated for its quality and distinctive Mediterranean character.

Option 2 – Morning experience: Medieval Methoni and Pylos

Our drive follows the scenic coast for an exploration of two magnificent Venetian castles and their waterfront villages. Methoni Castle, built in the early 13th century on a rocky promontory, ranks among the Mediterranean's largest. It boasts a stone bridge with 14 arches, and houses relics of Ottoman bathhouses and immured reliefs. Adjacent is Bourtzi, once a prison during Turkish rule. Pylos Castle, constructed by the Turks in 1573, showcases 16th-century military architecture fortified by European engineers against land and sea attacks. Venetian enhancements from 1686 to 1715 added the Zematistra gateway, Evdomos and Santa Maria bastions, and cannon embrasures on the south wall, flanked by towers like the Makrygiannis Tower. The castle encloses a hexagonal citadel with a moat.

Immersing

ourselves in the rich history of these Venetian fortresses and experiencing their strategic significance is a true insight into the everlasting importance of the coastline of the Peloponnese.

Day 7 Chania, Crete (Port: Souda)

Crete, the largest of the Greek islands hosts our journey for the next two days. This land of myths, history, and natural wonders is steeped in ancient mythology. In fact, Crete is believed to be the birthplace of Zeus, king of the gods. Its labyrinthine ruins resonate with tales of the Minotaur and King Minos. The Minoans, Europe's oldest civilisation, have left behind the formidable Palace of Knossos, now a UNESCO World Heritage site.

Crete's landscape is equally captivating, with rugged mountains, fertile plains, and idyllic beaches kissed by azure waters. Charming villages dot the countryside, where time seems to stand still amidst whitewashed buildings adorned with vibrant bougainvillea. Whether exploring ancient ruins, enjoying the island's rugged landscapes or simply soaking in the island's laid-back atmosphere, Crete offers a captivating experience for all who visit.

Our first stop is Souda, the bustling port of Chania, known for its eclectic Old Town and scenic surrounding plains. This area provides a range of interesting experiences to explore. Personalise your exploration with our included 'Your Choice' experiences. Option 1 – Morning experience: Walk Chania Old Town and Artisan Demonstration. Starting at the port of Chania, our journey takes us through the Akrotiri Peninsula to Chania Old Town, built upon an ancient Minoan settlement dating back to 3600 BC. Along the way, experience a unique pottery demonstration, offering a hands-on glimpse into Chania's artisanal heritage and enriching your exploration of this storied city. Option 2 – Morning experience: The Holocaust of Arkadi. Unlike any other site on Crete, the Monastery of Arkadi offers a profound insight into the island's relentless determination to remain true to its identity. Perched on a plateau near Mount Psiloritis, this historic monastery stands as a powerful symbol of Crete's quest for freedom from Ottoman rule. Likely founded in the early 14th century, the monastery was transformed into a priory in 1572. During the Cretan uprising against the Ottomans, Arkadi became a revolutionary stronghold. On November 9th, 1866, 15,000 Ottoman troops led by Suleyman the Magnificent surrounded the monastery, laying siege with 30 cannons. Despite a valiant defense by the 350 armed men, and 600 women and children who lived nearby, the monastery eventually fell after intense fighting. In a desperate act of defiance, the gunpowder storage was ignited, leading to a massacre now known as the Holocaust of Arkadi. Today, the Monastery of Arkadi invites visitors to explore its monumental site, which symbolises Crete's enduring spirit. On a locally guided tour we discover its ornate church, and delve into the small museum where Byzantine icons, religious artifacts, and poignant relics from the tragic events of the Holocaust of Arkadi vividly bring the island's dramatic past to life.

Option 3 – Morning / lunch experience: Cretian Agrofarm experience

Today, we journey to the rural Rethymno area. Our destination is an Agrofarm that showcases centuries-old farming methods amidst traditional surroundings with stone outhouses, vineyards, and organic gardens. At the farm, our hosts will introduce us to their livestock while demonstrating the traditional farming techniques still in use today. You will see where they produce fragrant cheeses, the vat where grapes are tread by hand (or rather, feet) in the autumn, and the wine press where we can sample organic wine. After lighting the wood-burning stove, we will try our hand at traditional bread making, crafting our own bread shapes to enjoy hot from the oven with olive oil, just as the locals do. Under a shady pergola with views over the olive groves down to the sea, we will savour a sumptuous organic lunch with organic wine. The lunch menu typically includes Sfougato (traditional pie with free-range eggs), stuffed vegetables with feta, hand-picked salad, Myzithropitakia with honey, fresh seasonal fruits, Greek coffee, and red and white organic wine. Additionally, we'll learn about Raki, a traditional spirit distilled from the remnants of grapes used in winemaking. This potent drink is often enjoyed as a symbol of hospitality and celebration. (Note: Your experience may differ from the itinerary above as farms are chosen subject to availability. Each with its own unique produce and livestock.)

Day 8 Agios Nikolaos, Crete (Port: Agios Nikolaos)

Our second stop on Crete is the renowned city of Agios Nikolaos, a seaside town rich in historical charm. The town's centerpiece, Voulismeni Lake, is steeped in mythology, with ancient legends claiming that the

Option 1 – Morning experience: The Minoan Capital of Knossos

One hour's drive from Agios Nikolaos we discover the Knossos excavation site, where we meet the fascinating early civilisation of the Minoans. Sir Arthur Evans' archaeological discoveries unveiled a city dating back to 4000 B.C., revealing the ancient Minoan Kingdom. The Minoans, renowned for their advanced culture, thrived on Crete with sophisticated art, architecture, and maritime trade, shaping the Aegean region's early history. At Knossos, we explore their Palace, adorned with frescoes, shields, the Hall of the Royal Guard, the King's Chamber with its alabaster throne, and the Queen's Apartment. Originally built around 1900 BC, Knossos was rebuilt after earthquakes and catastrophes. The Minoan civilisation declined following the eruption of Santorini around 1600 BC, which caused widespread devastation across the Aegean. Despite subsequent rebuilding efforts, including the Palace's reconstruction, Knossos ultimately succumbed to fire around 1400 BC. Our guide illuminates the Minoans' cultural and technological achievements, offering insight into their religious practices, social structure, and economic prowess.

Option 2 – Morning / lunch experience: Cretian Agrofarm experience

Today, we journey to the Cretian interior. Our destination is an Agrofarm that showcases centuries-old farming methods amidst traditional Cretian surroundings with stone outhouses, vineyards, and organic gardens. At the farm, our hosts will introduce us to their animals while demonstrating the traditional farming techniques still in use today. You will see where they produce fragrant cheeses, the vat where grapes are tread by hand (or rather, feet) in the autumn, and the wine press where we can sample organic wine. The lunch menu typically includes Sfougato (traditional pie with free-range eggs), stuffed vegetables with feta, hand-picked salad, Myzithropitakia with honey, fresh seasonal fruits, Greek coffee, and red and white organic wine. Additionally, we will learn about Raki, a traditional Cretian spirit distilled from the remnants of grapes used in winemaking. This potent drink is often enjoyed as a symbol of hospitality and celebration. (Your experience may differ from the itinerary above as farms are chosen subject to availability. Each with its own unique produce and livestock.).

Option 3 – Half-day experience: A Modern Twist on an Ancient Wine. Our visit to a Cretan vineyard combines traditional winemaking with modern techniques. This family-run operation starts with exceptional grapes nurtured through meticulous vineyard management and artisanal methods. The winemaking process is both refined and minimalist, with most vinification done in double-hulled stainless-steel tanks. Recent innovations in oak fermentation are set to enhance the red wines, which age in oak barrels for 10 months, while roussanne is matured in small oak barrels. Your journey begins with a walk through the family home gardens, followed by a tour of the production area, wine cellars and bottling facilities. The experience concludes with a tasting of five distinct Cretan wines, accompanied by a mezze plate of local delicacies. Cretan wines, with their deep-rooted history and modern resurgence, offer a unique and flavourful exploration of the island's rich viticultural heritage.

Day 9 Rhodes (Port: Rhodes)

Popular with culture enthusiasts and beach aficionados alike, Rhodes is the largest and most historically significant of Greece's Dodecanese islands. Known for its medieval Old Town, a UNESCO World Heritage Site, Rhodes boasts ancient ruins and cobblestone laneways that transport us back to the days of medieval Europe, with two fascinating 'Your Choice' experiences on offer this morning, leaving the afternoon free to explore independently before we sail late-afternoon.

The island's rich history is highlighted by two notable periods. After the Fourth Crusade, the Knights Hospitallers, fleeing Cyprus, were granted the island by Pope Clement V. They ruled for two centuries, constructing the impressive Palace of the Grand Master and fortifying the island. Their rule ended with the arrival of Suleiman the Magnificent, who, despite his conquest, allowed the Knights to leave with all the wealth they could carry. Whether exploring ancient sites or enjoying its sunny beaches, visitors to Rhodes will find a destination on where the past and present weave a fascinating tale.

Personalise your exploration with our included 'Your Choice' experiences.

Option 1 – Morning experience: The Knights of St John and Medieval Rhodes

The excursion begins with a short walk from the ship to the entrance of the Old Town, where our local guide leads us through this UNESCO-listed town. The Old Town lies apart from the New Town, sealed like a medieval time capsule behind a double ring of high walls and a deep moat. Nowhere else in the Dodecanese boasts so many layers of architectural history, with ruins and relics of the classical, medieval, Ottoman, and Italian eras intertwined in a maze of twisting alleys. Entering through the D'Amboise Gate, we visit the Grand Master's Palace, the most imposing building of medieval Rhodes. The palace and 'The Street of the Knights,' built in the 14th century, have remained largely untouched by time. The Knights of Rhodes, also known as the Knights Hospitaller, where a Christian military order granted the island in 1309 by the Byzantine Empire. They fortified Rhodes to defend against Ottoman forces, establishing it as a cultural and trade centre. Despite their defeat by the Ottomans in 1522, their architectural legacy remains. It is one of the rare survivors of the medieval world, standing unscathed as a piece of the past.

Option 2 – Morning experience: The Ancient City of Lindos

A one-hour scenic drive along the East Coast of the island takes us to Lindos. Renowned as the most attractive village on Rhodes, the nearby ancient site boasts significant historical structures, including the Great Stoa, the Temple of Athena Lindia from the 4th century BCE, the ancient theatre, and the remnants of the Temple of Dionysus. The Acropolis, perched atop a sheer rock rising 115 meters above the sea, offers unparalleled views of the sea. Lindos itself is a medieval village built around the base of the steep rock leading to the Acropolis. As you wander through its narrow, winding streets, you will encounter traditionally built white stone houses adorned with decorated pebble stone floors. Many of these houses date back to the 15th and 16th centuries, providing a glimpse into the village's storied past.

Historically, Lindos was a significant city-state in ancient Greece, founded by the Dorians in the 10th century BC. It became a major trading centre, flourishing during the Archaic period when its influence extended across the Mediterranean. Lindos is also linked to various myths and legends, including Cleobulus, one of the Seven Sages of Greece, who ruled the city. As you explore Lindos, you will discover its rich history reflected in the architecture and archaeological remains scattered throughout the village. From its ancient roots to its medieval heritage, Lindos offers a unique journey through time, making it a must-visit destination on the island of Rhodes.

Day 10 Santorini (Tender Port: Santorini)

As we arrive at Santorini, it is easy to see why this iconic island is a favourite among travellers. The sheer cliffs soaring above the Aegean Sea are awe-inspiring as we cross the immense crater of a submerged volcano that leads to its shores. Shaped by a cataclysmic eruption 3,600 years ago, Santorini is famed for its striking sunsets and unique caldera views. Named Thira in ancient times, Santorini has always attracted the curious. Its ancient ruins, including the Minoan site of Akrotiri, offer a rich cultural heritage reflected in local cuisine, wine production, vibrant festivals, and artisanal crafts. Enjoy leisure time before our cable car ride takes us from Fira to the port below, where we tender back to our ship.

Option 2 – Morning experience: Akrotiri, Fira and the village of Oia.

Setting off from the port of Athinios, we drive to the ancient site of Akrotiri. This Bronze Age settlement, destroyed by a massive eruption in the 17th century BC, was buried under volcanic ash, which remarkably preserved the entire city. The people of Akrotiri were advanced for their time, with a well-organised society evidenced by their sophisticated infrastructure, vibrant frescoes, and complex urban layout. Its inhabitants had a high standard of living, with access to imported goods from across the Mediterranean. The ruins remained hidden until 1860, when workers quarrying volcanic ash for the Suez Canal uncovered them. The discovery of their homes and artifacts provides valuable insights into their daily lives and societal structure.

Next, our coach takes us to the picturesque village of Oia, home to around 1,000 residents. This charming village is renowned for its immaculate, white-washed houses and blue-domed churches. Option 2 – Morning experience: Mythical Delos

More than any island in the Cyclades archipelago, Delos holds immense significance in Greek mythology and history. Revered as the birthplace of Apollo and Artemis, this ancient land was a paramount religious and cultural centre. Delos thrived from around 900 BC to AD 100, evolving from a sacred shrine to a bustling commercial hub. However, its decline began after repeated attacks by pirates in the 1st century BC and the eventual shift of trade routes, leading to its abandonment. Today, Delos is a UNESCO World Heritage Site, boasting some of the most extensive excavations in the Mediterranean, with ongoing archaeological work still taking place.

Located fourteen kilometres off the coast of Mykonos, a thirty-minute boat ride transports us to this historical treasure. We immerse ourselves in the remnants of its ancient civilization, strolling through the sacred Agora and along the iconic Terrace of the Lions, while our guide will bring this ancient city to life. Whether you are a history enthusiast or simply enjoy a good story, Delos promises a mesmerising experience unlike any other. Upon returning to Mykonos, the tour continues with a walking tour of Mykonos Town, where we explore the Matoyiannia area and visit the famous windmills before returning to our ship.

As we say goodbye to Mykonos, we enjoy a Farewell dinner onboard while heading towards the Greek mainland. With everything we've experienced, it really does feel like 'It's all Greek to me.'
